

STEM Careers

Anthropologist

Job Description: Studies the history of humans including origins and ancient societies/cultures.

What does an Anthropologist do?

- Participates in forensic activities such as bone/tooth identification or forensic sketching.
- Studies archival collections to help explain origin and specifics of past cultures or human societies.
- Teaches and mentors undergraduates or graduate students in Anthropology.
- Performs studies on today's human society to make connections with the past.

Your Interests:

- Do you like anatomy and biology?
- Do you like history?
- Do you like traveling and meeting new people?
- Do you have good communication skills?

Outlook: ~~Faster than Average~~

Average Salary - $26.95 hourly, $56,070 annual
Projected Job Openings - 3,800 over the next 10 years

Education/Program of Study:

- Most positions require Master's Degree. Advanced positions require Ph.D.